No voice of wind or waterfall Around his bed of flowery moss, Nor sudden song of birds that call From bough to bough the glade across, Can stir the silent spell of sleep That love must keep.

Yet two there are who may not dare
To tread those woodland ways again,
Lest their light footfalls, wandering there,
Should break the truce of bygone pain.
Lest love, who sighed himself to sleep,
Should wake to weep.

In Honor of Visitors.

Friday, the closing day of the triennial meeting of the Society of the Cheinnati in Richmond, was rendered noteworthy by the brilliant entertainments given in honor of the members of the General and State Society of the Cincinnati, and of the Virginia Colonial Dames.

Mrs. Herbert A. Claiborne, president of the Colonial Dames of America, was the hostess of the earlier of these in an elegant luncheon, given at her home, No. 699 West Grace Street, yesterday at 130 P. M. The whole lower floor of the house was thrown open, and the effect produced by decorations throughout, in blue and white, the colors of the Cincinnati, relieved here and there, by touches of the Colonial yellow, was artistic to a charming degree.

Mrs. Claiborne received her guests in white organdy, with Valenciennes lace trimming.

SQUAD of regular infantry In the Commune's closing days, Had captured a crowd of rebels By the wall of Pere-Lachaise.

There were desperate men, wild women, And dark-eyed Amazon girls, And one little boy, with a peach-down cheek And yellow clustering curls.

The captain seized the little waif, And said, "What dost thou here?" "Sapristi, citizen captain! I'm a Communist, my dear!"

"Very well! Then you die with the others!" "Very well! That's my affair; But first let me take to my mother, Who lives by the wine-shop there,

"My father's watch. You see it; A gay old thing, is it not? It would please the old lady to have it; Then I'll come back here, and be shot."

"That is the last we shall see of him," The grizzled captain grinned, As the little man skimmed down the hill, Like a swallow down the wind.

For the joy of killing had lost its zest In the glut of those awful days, And Death writhed, gorged like a greedy snake, From the Arch to Pere-Lachaise.

But before the last platoon had fired, The child's shrill voice was heard; 'Houp-la! the old girl made such a row I feared I should break my word."

Against the bullet-pitted wall He took his place with the rest, A button was lost from his ragged blouse, Which showed his soft white breast.

"Now blaze away, my children! With your little one-two-three!" The chassenots tore the stout young heart, And saved Society.

A notable feature of this triennial meeting of the Cincinnati, just ended, is the interesting fact that the meeting is the first one that the General Society has ever held in the Old Dominion, and the further fact that this triennial meeting was the largest ever held in the whole one hundred and twenty-two years of the existence of the Cincinnati Society.

Upon the invitation of Bouth Carolina Cincinnati Society, it has been arranged to hold the next triennial meeting of the o'clock this afternoon, three portraits will be presented to the Confederate Memorial Literary Society. Dr. Aljard Memminger, of Charleston, S. C., at the invitation of Mrs. H. A. Claiborne, vicergent of the South Carolina room, will make the presentation address.

The portraits are those of Hon. Stephen Mailory, of Fiorida, secretary of the Confederacy, Judge John H. Reagan, of Texas, and of Hon. C. G. Momminger, Secretary of the Postmaster-General of the Confederacy, Judge John H. Reagan, of Texas, and the father of Dr. Memminger.

The portraits will be hung in the Solid South room, where it is hoped that all the members of President Davis's Cabinet will be finally placed.

After the presentation of the portraits, a memorial window of exquisite design will be unveiled in the Maryland room at the Museum, of which Mrs. C. O'B. Cowardin is vice-regent. The window is the gift of the faithful and loyal Daughiers of Maryland room. Mr. John Prentiss Poe, of Baltimore, a cousin of the poet, Edgar Alien Poe, will make the presentation address, and the Rev. William E. Evans, of Monumental Church, who is a native Baltimorean, will make the speech of acceptance.

The window, executed by Tiffany, of New York, is a copy in design from the most beautiful of all Confederate monuments, the "Gloria Victis" of F. W. Ruckstulf, erected by the Confederate Daughter's of Maryland in Baltimore as a memorial to their fallen heroes. The maryland room has the distinction of being the second to that of Texas in placing a memorial window to its soldiers. It is hoped that Mrs. Poe, the regent of the room, and a number of prominent Baltimore and Maryland people will be present at the exercises marking a memorable event in the history of the Museum.
